

By 2017, there will be 200 million students in higher education around the world.

As the knowledge economy takes off worldwide, there is a growing demand for both traditional and non-traditional education. Which translates into an accelerated demand for cutting-edge, online learning solutions. The kind of solutions that McGraw-Hill Education offers to the world every day. Or put another way, when markets open, economies expand, people prosper and McGraw-Hill grows.
